An 80-acre tract of Trego county land sold last year for $800 and this year produced more than 2,000 bushels of wheat, worth about $2,500. It happens that way in western Kansas—sometimes.

Another 80-acre tract, adjoining the former, was sold a few years ago for $2,000, since which it has not produced enough to pay the interest on the investment in any one year. It happens that way in western Kansas—sometimes.

How are we to explain the difference in the two cases? That's easy. In the first case the farmer planted wheat in a "wheat year" and got a good crop. In the other the farmer planted corn in the wheat years and planted wheat in the corn years and failed to get either. We seldom get a good crop of both wheat and corn the same season.

No man is wise enough to make the right guess every time, year after year, and aside from the ordinary seasonal risks he must run the gauntlet of the three "outs": blow out, burn out and hail out. The old adage about putting all your eggs in one basket applies pretty well in this connection.

School will begin pretty soon and after that comes the county fair. Perhaps it would be well to have the county surveyor find and locate the cement walks leading out in that direction.

Certainly, most of the resident owners keep the weeds out along their walks—but there are others. Some are different and some are merely indifferent.

That was no ordinary Ford breeze that passed here last Sunday. It seemed to be taking everything "on high."

GOVERNOR CAPPER'S FINE SHOW-ING AS A VOTE GETTER

The official returns from the recent Kansas primary show that Governor Capper has broken all records as a vote-getter. Notwithstanding the total number of voters participating in the primary this year was about 7,000 less than two years ago. Governor Capper received 139,918 votes this year against 105,800 in 1914. There was a noticeable falling off in the Democratic vote for governor this year. Hodges had 72,736 votes in the primary of 1914, while the combined vote of both Landson and Gaitskill this year is only 47,432. Capper's vote of 139,918 breaks all records. It is the largest ever given any candidate in a Kansas primary for any office.

In many counties the governor's primary vote this year is much heavier than his vote at the election of 1914, which is a compliment never before accorded to a state candidate. In Sedgewick county, for example, Governor Capper's vote of 3,773 at the election of 1914, was increased to 5,689 at the recent primary. Douglas increased from 2,664 to 3,703, and Wyandotte from 5,019 to 5,916.

Two years ago Governor Capper was high man on the Republican ticket by 14,000. This year he received 22,000 more votes than any one else on his own ticket and had three times as many as the combined Democratic, Socialist and Prohibition vote, all of which indicates that Capper's satisfactory handling of the office of governor has made him stronger than ever with the people of Kansas. Governor Capper was elected two years ago by the record-breaking majority of 50,000. His fine showing in the primary indicates that Charles Finch may not have been so far off when he predicted in the Lawrence Gazette the other day that Governor Capper would be re-elected by 100,000 majority.

While speeding around the race track on his motorcycle at fifty miles per hour, Otto Harzman received injuries which will disable his left arm for several weeks. The machine struck a soft place in the track and ran into the barbed wire fence. His arm was badly torn above the elbow and he was otherwise bruised up. The machine caught fire and was ruined.
